Behind Every Great Woman . . . Is Usually Another Great Woman Whether you are just starting a new career and wondering how to navigate your way through the office politics, or you're facing a milestone birthday and looking to bring more meaning to your life, you will glean useful wisdom, advice, and inspiration from the amazing woman revealed in this book. These women catapulted themselves to the top of their professions against incredible odds: some were homeless, some were poor, and some were outcasts. Yet regardless of their place in life, they remained passionate about their purpose, they embraced their dreams, and dared to use their unique gifts to their fullest. In a time when most women could benefit from some strong female support and camaraderie, let these women challenge you and encourage you to leave your own mark on the world.

In No Talking, Andrew Clements portrays a battle of wills between some spunky kids and a creative teacher with the perfect pitch for elementary school life that made Frindle an instant classic. It's boys vs. girls when the noisiest, most talkative, and most competitive fifth graders in history challenge one another to see who can go longer without talking. Teachers and school administrators are in an uproar, until an innovative teacher sees how the kids' experiment can provide a terrific and unique lesson in communication.

Seminar paper from the year 2003 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies - Literature, grade: 2 (B), University of Bamberg (Centre for British Studies), course: Introduction to british media and communication science, language: English, abstract: At the age of six, Joanne Kathleen Rowling² wrote her first short story about a rabbit named Rabbit, who had the measles and was visited by his friends. Amongst them was a little bee called Miss Bee. However, she never told anyone about her "burning ambition"³ to become a writer, not even Ms Shephard, her English teacher at Wydean Comprehensive School. Ms Shephard was a great influence on young Joanne as "she inspired trust"⁴. Shephard's comments on Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone "meant more to [Joanne Rowling] than any newspaper reviews"⁵. After finishing secondary school and her studies in French and Classics at Exeter University, Joanne Rowling started to work as a research assistant at Amnesty International which was a "very, very interesting place to work"⁶, but at the same time a huge mistake, because Joanne Rowling admits that as a secretary she would be anybody's "worst nightmare"⁷. It was during a delayed train journey from Manchester to King's Cross Station in London, when she was obviously hit by magic. The story about a little orphan named Harry Potter, who has to live with his old-fashioned relatives and finds out that he is a wizard, came to her mind. And because she had no pen or notebook with her, she had to think it. So, Hogwarts - School of Witchcraft and Wizardry came to life in her imagination, and as she invented it, it "felt like research"⁸. "It was a question of discovery why Harry was where he was, why his parents were dead"⁹. At the end of the journey she knew "it was going to be a seven-book series"¹⁰. The next five years, while she moved to Portugal, got married, had a baby, got divorced and moved back to Britain, she continued writing the first book of the series Harry P
